Kohler in belief that his entrance would split the regular republican vote and insure nomination of Congressman Joseph E. Beck, choice of the LaFollette progressive group. Kohler's candidacy was boosted over night by the open endorsement of George Vits, national committeeman.

Consideration of the platform promised the first main conflict of factions involving wets and dries in both Kohler and Zimmerman camps, and endorsement of candidates was not expected to reach the convention floor until late in the day.

COL. LINDBERGH CONFERS ON NEW AIR LINE ROUTES

LANDED LATE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON AT ST. PAUL

DECLINES TO DISCUSS WHAT ROUTES ARE BEING CONSIDERED

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—Following his unexpected landing here late Tuesday, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today was said to be entering a second series of conferences with northwest railroad officials over proposed establishment of passenger air line routes.

Lindbergh arrived here unexpectedly at 4:10 P. M. in a Ryan biplane at the municipal airport. He was immediately taken to the home of Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern railway, where he conferred with Hill and Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern.

Colonel Lindbergh declined to discuss what routes are under consideration but it is believed that plans are being made for the establishment of the second leg of a New York to Seattle line. Following out his policy of keeping secret his itinerary, the colonel refused to state when he planned to leave Minnesota but it is thought he will first visit his boyhood home, Little Falls, Minn. Lindbergh is at present carrying out an extensive tour of the country with a view toward investigating possible air lines. He flew here from Janesville, Wis.

A delegation of Little Falls citizens headed by the mayor called on Lindbergh today with an invitation urging him to "drop" in on his old home town for a brief visit.

The trans-Atlantic flier, however, was not in a position to say whether he would make the trip.

Lindbergh admitted that he desired to be back in New York within a few days so it was believed he would take off for the east either today or tomorrow.

MISS EARHART APPEARING IN PUBLIC IN LONDON

A PRETTY, SMARTLY ATTIRED AMERICAN, DECIDEDLY FEMININE

SHE PLANS TO SAIL HOME SOON WITHOUT GOING TO PARIS

London, June 20.—(UP)—Her boyish flying costume discarded in favor of borrowed clothing—becoming but less conspicuous—Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman trans-ocean flyer, appeared in public today as a pretty, smartly attired and decidedly feminine American girl.

To newspapermen, Miss Earhart announced that she planned to sail for New York within a week without going to Paris.

Miss Earhart, who was so tired that she kept her eyes open only with difficulty, had gone to bed early last night at the Hyde Park hotel.

When she reappeared this morning, flushed with excitement and completely rested, people who first saw her yesterday scarcely could recognize her except by her unruly mop of curly hair.

Instead of her pull-over khaki flying breeches and high black boots, Miss Earhart wore a fluttering, printed dress—borrowed from Mrs. F. E. Guest and, it was remarked, a little large for her in spots. With the dress she wore a pair of tiny French shoes and silk stockings. There was no mistaking the origin of the color in her cheeks.

To her attractiveness, as she received newspapermen in her hotel suite, Miss Earhart added the frank modesty that has made friends for her wherever she has been since her arrival in England. She was obviously happy, and apparently completely at ease, as she emerged from stacks of telegrams and letters of congratulation to begin the conversation and as she returned to it each time after an endless series of telephone summonses from dress-makers who wanted to furnish her with clothes to replace the borrowed ones she wore—her own wardrobe consisting only of her flying kit and a toothbrush.

Miss Earhart said she had accepted only one formal invitation—to be guest of honor at a dinner to be given for her by the air league of the British empire Saturday.

But during the day, from among her many invitations, Miss Earhart sent acceptances for luncheon to be given for her by Mrs. Houghton, wife of the American ambassador, Saturday.

Miss Earhart found in her correspondence her first British proposal of marriage. A Kent county man, whose name Miss Earhart would not make public, wrote that he was charmed with her, and would like to marry her.

Tonight Miss Earhart was to be the guest of honor at a dinner at Capt. and Mrs. Guest's home, and she thought it possible that she might go to the fashionable Embassy club to dance later.

Completing the metamorphosis from daring flyer to conventional, if not ordinary, girl, Miss Earhart expects to go tomorrow to the Ascot race meeting—the big outdoor society event of the gay London season—and match her new clothes against those of society women of all nations who through the exclusive royal enclosure, to which admittance is gained only upon invitation from the king and queen.

It was said today that Miss Earhart's plane, Friendship, probably would remain in England with Mrs. Guest.

While Miss Earhart was attracting the attention of all Londoners, Wilmer Stultz, who piloted her plane across, and Lou Gordon, mechanic, were forgotten completely for the moment, and no one was quite sure what they were doing or where they were.

All that was known of Stultz was that he had not yet decided when to return home.

GEORGE REMUS RELEASED FROM INSANE ASYLUM

MILLIONAIRE BOOTLEGGER-LAWYER AND CONFESSED SLAYER OF WIFE

SUPREME COURT REVIEWED STAY OF HIS RELEASE ON HABEAS CORPUS

Columbus, Ohio, June 20.—(UP)—George Remus, millionaire bootlegger-lawyer and confessed slayer of his wife, Imogene, was ordered released today from the state hospital for the criminally insane at Lima, Ohio.

Remus was admitted to the hospital following his acquittal of the murder of his wife, on the sole grounds of insanity.

He was granted a writ of habeas corpus by the Allen county court of appeals, but the supreme court stayed his release pending a review. Today's order resulted from the review. The issue upon which the decision was made was whether anyone other than the superintendent of the state hospital can order the release of a person formerly declared insane by a court.

Dr. Vorbau, superintendent of the asylum, described Remus as "psychopathic, dangerous and a menace to society," and insisted he was not cured sufficiently to warrant his release.

The decision of the court read in part: "One who is acquitted of murder on the sole ground of insanity and who has been committed to the Lima state hospital for the insane is not deprived from thereafter seeking a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of showing that he is sane and therefore unlawfully restrained of his liberty."

Remus will be released from the asylum later today, according to advice from Dr. W. H. Vorbau, superintendent of the hospital.

Vorbau would make no other statement than that the court's orders would be carried out.

SILENT ARCTIC HOLDS MYSTERY IN ITS ICY GRIP

NO WORD FROM PLANE, ABSENT 40 HOURS ON 700 MILE FLIGHT

REPORTS AT STOCKHOLM THAT HE, LIKE NOBIL, IS DOWN IN ICY SEA

London, June 20.—(UP)—The silent Arctic held in its icy grip today the answer to a second aviation mystery that threatened to become of as poignant interest and gravity as that which surrounds the fate of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia.

Road Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole, left Tromsø, Norway, at 6:10 P. M. Monday in the French Farman seaplane piloted by Commandant Rene Guilhard, to fly to join in work of locating and rescuing the Italia's crew.

At midday, more than 40 hours after the plane's departure on a flight of not more than 700 miles at most, there had been no concrete news of the plane.

It was not known definitely whether Amundsen and his French companions—for Guilhard carried a crew—intended to halt at Kings Bay or fly direct to North East Land on which Gen. Umberto Nobile and five of the Italia's crew were drifting.

Since then there have been reports, of mysterious origin, that Amundsen had passed Green Harbor, Spitzbergen; that he had landed near Gen. Nobile, and that he had located three men of the Italia's crew of sixteen, who were walking over the ice toward North East Land.

Then today there came a report to a Stockholm newspaper that Amundsen was down, like Nobile, in the Polar Sea—but in the sea in his plane, between ice floes that would threaten momentarily to crush into splinters the frail craft.

The Stockholm dispatch said Amundsen was in graver need of help than was the crew of the Italia, for disaster threatened him imminently.

A rumor that Amundsen had landed beside the encampment of Gen. Umberto Nobile had caused a joyous celebration in Oslo last night. The "news" was announced at restaurants, amusement parks and moving picture theatres and was received with cheers.

Today at Oslo as elsewhere there was grave anxiety not only for Amundsen but—with the difficulties of rescue tragically apparent—for the three parties that comprise the crew of 16 of the lost dirigible.

Altogether there were ten airplanes, large and small, within cruising distance of Nobile's position and thirteen rescue expeditions were in northern waters. Six nations were represented.

The possibility that Amundsen might have been the first man to establish contact with Gen. Nobile had promised an ironic situation. Nobile and Amundsen flew over the north pole together in 1926 in the dirigible Norge. They did not get along well, and soon afterwards the flight broke completely. Bitter exchanges of accusations and acid criticisms came.

Two dog-sled expeditions of Italian Alpine Chasseurs, by land, and the Russian icebreaker Maligin, by sea, were proceeding with all possible speed toward Foy Island, near the camp of Gen. Nobile's men. The giant Russian icebreaker Krassin, with nearly 150 men aboard, passed southern Denmark yesterday on its way to Spitzbergen. Aboard the Maligin is the Russian star aviator, Rabushkni, with an airplane already loaded with clothing, food, firearms and medicine for the Italia's crew.

Stockholm, Sweden, June 20.—The newspaper Aftonbladet today received a dispatch from King's Bay—of which there is no confirmation—that the seaplane in which Road Amundsen was flying to the rescue of the dirigible Italia's crew had been forced down in the Polar seas, and was drifting among ice floes.

"Amundsen is in more urgent need of help than is the Italia's crew," the dispatch added.

STOWAWAYS CAUSE TROUBLE ON SHIP; LINER ASKS AID

Colombo, Ceylon, June 20.—(UP)—An appeal for warship assistance to deal with desperate stowaways was radioed today by the Australian liner Jervis Bay.

The message was picked up by the British cruiser Enterprise in Colombo harbor.

The Enterprise replied that there was no warship in the Jervis Bay's route and advised the liner to report further if the situation was serious.

The Jervis Bay carried 600 passengers and a crew of 120.

COL. LINDBERGH CONFERS ON NEW AIR LINE ROUTES

LANDED LATE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON AT ST. PAUL

DECLINES TO DISCUSS WHAT ROUTES ARE BEING CONSIDERED

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—Following his unexpected landing here late Tuesday, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today was said to be entering a second series of conferences with northwest railroad officials over proposed establishment of passenger air line routes.

Lindbergh arrived here unexpectedly at 4:10 P. M. in a Ryan biplane at the municipal airport. He was immediately taken to the home of Louis W. Hill, chairman of the board of the Great Northern railway, where he conferred with Hill and Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern.

Colonel Lindbergh declined to discuss what routes are under consideration but it is believed that plans are being made for the establishment of the second leg of a New York to Seattle line. Following out his policy of keeping secret his itinerary, the colonel refused to state when he planned to leave Minnesota but it is thought he will first visit his boyhood home, Little Falls, Minn. Lindbergh is at present carrying out an extensive tour of the country with a view toward investigating possible air lines. He flew here from Janesville, Wis.

A delegation of Little Falls citizens headed by the mayor called on Lindbergh today with an invitation urging him to "drop" in on his old home town for a brief visit.

The trans-Atlantic flier, however, was not in a position to say whether he would make the trip.

Lindbergh admitted that he desired to be back in New York within a few days so it was believed he would take off for the east either today or tomorrow.

JUDGE LANDIS TO FISH IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, June 20.—(UP)—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, arrived here today for ten days of fishing and golf in Minnesota and Canada.

Landis refused to talk baseball, politics or anything except fishing. "No, I'm not going to visit President Coolidge on the Bruie. A few of us will run up to International Falls for several days and then try the lakes of Minnesota."

There will be four or five men in the Landis party.

MISS BOLL TO ABANDON HER ATLANTIC FLIGHT

St. John's, N. F., June 20.—(UP)—Defeated in her attempt to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic, Miss Mabel Boll has decided to abandon her trans-Atlantic flight attempt and will return immediately to New York.

MISS EARHART APPEARING IN PUBLIC IN LONDON

A PRETTY, SMARTLY ATTIRED AMERICAN, DECIDEDLY FEMININE

SHE PLANS TO SAIL HOME SOON WITHOUT GOING TO PARIS

London, June 20.—(UP)—Her boyish flying costume discarded in favor of borrowed clothing—becoming but less conspicuous—Miss Amelia Earhart, first woman trans-ocean flyer, appeared in public today as a pretty, smartly attired and decidedly feminine American girl.

To newspapermen, Miss Earhart announced that she planned to sail for New York within a week without going to Paris.

Miss Earhart, who was so tired that she kept her eyes open only with difficulty, had gone to bed early last night at the Hyde Park hotel.

When she reappeared this morning, flushed with excitement and completely rested, people who first saw her yesterday scarcely could recognize her except by her unruly mop of curly hair.

Instead of her pull-over khaki-flying breeches and high black boots, Miss Earhart wore a fluttering, printed dress—borrowed from Mrs. F. E. Guest and, it was remarked, a little large for her in spots. With the dress she wore a pair of tiny French shoes and silk stockings. There was no mistaking the origin of the color in her cheeks.

To her attractiveness, as she received newspapermen in her hotel suite, Miss Earhart added the frank modesty that has made friends for her wherever she has been since her arrival in England. She was obviously happy, and apparently completely at ease, as she emerged from stacks of telegrams and letters of congratulations to begin the conversation and as she returned to it each time after an endless series of telephone summonses from dressmakers who wanted to furnish her with clothes to replace the borrowed ones she wore—her own wardrobe consisting only of her flying kit and a toothbrush.

Miss Earhart said she had accepted only one formal invitation—to be guest of honor at a dinner to be given for her by the air league of the British empire Saturday.

But during the day, from among her many invitations, Miss Earhart sent acceptances for luncheon to be given for her by Mrs. Houghton, wife of the American ambassador, Saturday.

Miss Earhart found in her correspondence her first British proposal of marriage. A Kent county man, whose name Miss Earhart would not make public, wrote that he was charmed with her, and would like to marry her.

Tonight Miss Earhart was to be the guest of honor at a dinner at Capt. and Mrs. Guest's home, and she thought it possible that she might go to the fashionable Embassy club to dance later.

Completing the metamorphosis from daring flyer to conventional, if not ordinary, girl, Miss Earhart expects to go tomorrow to the Ascot race meeting—the big outdoor society event of the gay London season—and match her new clothes against those of society women of all nations who through the exclusive royal enclosure, to which admittance is gained only upon invitation from the king and queen.

It was said today that Miss Earhart's plane, Friendship, probably would remain in England with Mrs. Guest.

While Miss Earhart was attracting the attention of all Londoners, Wilmer Stultz, who piloted her plane across, and Lou Gordon, mechanic, were forgotten completely for the moment, and no one was quite sure what they were doing or where they were.

All that was known of Stultz was that he had not yet decided when to return home.

REGISTERED MAIL WORTH $150,000 STOLEN BY 6 MEN

Toronto, Ont., June 20.—(UP)—Registered mail worth from $150,000 to $200,000 was stolen by six men in a sensational express car holdup at the union station here at midnight.

The car was being loaded by fifteen men preparatory to being routed to Chicago when the bandits swooped down and forced the employees to back against the side of the car.

Toronto police were notified and the city was surrounded but the bandits were still at large this morning. The police have descriptions of the bandits and arrests are expected today.

GEORGE REMUS RELEASED FROM INSANE ASYLUM

MILLIONAIRE BOOTLEGGER-LAWYER AND CONFESSED SLAYER OF WIFE

SUPREME COURT REVIEWED STAY OF HIS RELEASE ON HABEAS CORPUS

Columbus, Ohio, June 20.—(UP)—George Remus, millionaire bootlegger-lawyer and confessed slayer of his wife, Imogene, was ordered released today from the state hospital for the criminally insane at Lima, Ohio.

Remus was admitted to the hospital following his acquittal of the murder of his wife, on the sole grounds of insanity.

He was granted a writ of habeas corpus by the Allen county court of appeals, but the supreme court stayed his release pending a review. Today's order resulted from the review.

The issue upon which the decision was made was whether anyone other than the superintendent of the state hospital can order the release of a person formerly declared insane by a court.

Dr. Vorbau, superintendent of the asylum, described Remus as "psychopathic, dangerous and a menace to society," and insisted he was not cured sufficiently to warrant his release.

The decision of the court read in part: "One who is acquitted of murder on the sole ground of insanity and who has been committed to the Lima state hospital for the insane is not deprived from thereafter seeking a writ of habeas corpus for the purpose of showing that he is sane and therefore unlawfully restrained of his liberty."

Remus will be released from the asylum later today, according to advice from Dr. W. H. Vorbau, superintendent of the hospital.

Vorbau would make no other statement than that the court's orders would be carried out.

CHARLES P. HOWARD AGAIN HEADS THE PRINTERS UNION

Indianapolis, Ind., June 20.—(UP)—Charles P. Howard of Chicago was re-elected president of the International Typographical Union, it was announced here today.

The progressive element of the union, headed by Howard, was said to have won every office over the administration faction which has controlled the organization for thirty years.

Theodore Perry, Indianapolis, was elected vice president. George Bentley, New York, defeated Austin Hewson, New York, for second vice president, and Woodruff Randolph of Chicago was named secretary-treasurer over John W. Hays of Minneapolis.

BAD WEATHER DELAYS FLIGHT OF THEA RASCHE

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 20.—(UP)—Unfavorable weather again prevented Thea Rascche, German aviatrix, from starting her flight to Old Orchard, Me., today. The trip to Maine will be the first part of an attempted trans-Atlantic flight.

William Winston, pilot of the Curtiss air service, who will accompany Miss Rascche to Old Orchard, said the flight would be made tomorrow.

SILENT ARCTIC HOLDS MYSTERY IN ITS ICY GRIP

NO WORD FROM PLANE, ABSENT 40 HOURS ON 700 MILE FLIGHT

REPORTS AT STOCKHOLM THAT HE, LIKE NOBIL, IS DOWN IN ICY SEA

London, June 20.—(UP)—The silent Arctic held in its icy grip today the answer to a second aviation mystery that threatened to become of as poignant interest and gravity as that which surrounds the fate of the crew of the lost dirigible Italia.

Road Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole, left Tromsø, Norway, at 6:10 P. M. Monday in the French Farman seaplane piloted by Commandant Rene Guilbard, to fly to join in work of locating and rescuing the Italia's crew.

At midday, more than 40 hours after the plane's departure on a flight of not more than 700 miles at most, there had been no concrete news of the plane.

It was not known definitely whether Amundsen and his French companions—for Guilbard carried a crew—intended to halt at Kings Bay or fly direct to North East Land on which Gen. Umberto Nobile and five of the Italia's crew were drifting.

Since then there have been reports, of mysterious origin, that Amundsen had passed Green Harbor, Spitzbergen; that he had landed near Gen. Nobile, and that he had located three men of the Italia's crew of sixteen, who were walking over the ice toward North East Land.

Then today there came a report to a Stockholm newspaper that Amundsen was down, like Nobile, in the Polar Sea—but in the sea in his plane, between ice floes that would threaten momentarily to crush into splinters the frail craft.

The Stockholm dispatch said Amundsen was in graver need of help than was the crew of the Italia, for disaster threatened him imminently.

A rumor that Amundsen had landed beside the encampment of Gen. Umberto Nobile had caused a joyous celebration in Oslo last night. The "news" was announced at restaurants, amusement parks and moving picture theatres and was received with cheers.

Today at Oslo as elsewhere there was gravest anxiety not only for Amundsen—but with the difficulties of rescue tragically apparent—for the three parties that comprise the crew of 16 of the lost dirigible.

Altogether there were ten airplanes, large and small, within cruising distance of Nobile's position and thirteen rescue expeditions were in northern waters. Six nations were represented.

The possibility that Amundsen might have been the first man to establish contact with Gen. Nobile had promised an ironic situation. Nobile and Amundsen flew over the north pole together in 1926 in the dirigible Norge. They did not get along well, and soon afterwards the flight broke completely. Bitter exchanges of accusations and acid criticisms came.

Two dog-sled expeditions of Italian Alpine Chasseurs, by land, and the Russian icebreaker Malignin, by sea, were proceeding with all possible speed toward Foy Island, near the camp of Gen. Nobile's men. The giant Russian icebreaker Krassin, with nearly 150 men aboard, passed southern Denmark yesterday on its way to Spitzbergen. Aboard the Malignin is the Russian star aviator, Rabushkni, with an airplane already loaded with clothing, food, firearms and medicine for the Italia's crew.

Stockholm, Sweden, June 20.—The newspaper Aftonbladet today received a dispatch from King's Bay—of which there is no confirmation—that the seaplane in which Road Amundsen was flying to the rescue of the dirigible Italia's crew had been forced down in the Polar seas, and was drifting among ice floes.

"Amundsen is in more urgent need of help than is the Italia's crew," the dispatch added.

HAROLD LLOYD-ANN CRUSTY IN "SPEEDY" A PARAMOUNT RELEASE PRODUCED BY HAROLD LLOYD CORPORATION

Harold Lloyd is one comedian who has elevated slapstick to such a high plane that even the most hardened critic can find no objection to it. And he has done it by giving his action a sincere twist that takes away from it any flavor of "hokum." Take a look at "Speedy," for example, now showing at the Lyceum. This is his latest picture, and one of the fastest moving in his lexicon of great comedies.

"Speedy" is full of uproarious laugh situations. Restraint can be thrown to the wind while looking at this one, for every one else in the audience will be lacking in control of his adrenal glands, the glands that make one laugh.

Ann Christy is Harold's leading lady in "Speedy."

HAROLD LLOYD-ANN CHRISTY IN "SPEEDY" A PARAMOUNT RELEASE PRODUCED BY HAROLD LLOYD CORPORATION

Harold Lloyd is one comedian who has elevated slapstick to such a high plane that even the most hardened critic can find no objection to it. And he has done it by giving his action a sincere twist that takes away from it any flavor of "hokum." Take a look at "Speedy," for example, now showing at the Lyceum. This is his latest picture, and one of the fastest moving in his lexicon of great comedies.

D. K. FULLERTON TO VISIT BIRTH PLACE

Now Sailing for Scotland on Duchess of Bedford Making Maiden Voyage

RENEWES EARLY ACQUAINTANCES
Learned Boat Building in Clyde Yards, Followed Sea Then Came to Brainerd

D. K. Fullerton, Brainerd, who is now sailing on the S. S. Duchess of Bedford of the Canadian Pacific steamship lines for the British Isles will visit again the home of his birth at Arron, Scotland and renew acquaintances of his young manhood days.

The trip unquestionably will prove a revelation to him as Scotland has followed the trend of the other progressive countries, gaining in population and construction. He will however recognize many of the familiar landmarks and the age old buildings and construction that make Scotland priceless in historical value.

Mr. Fullerton left Brainerd on June 15 and sailed from Montreal, Quebec, Canada, this week on the Duchess of Bedford, making its maiden voyage. He will land at Glasgow, then continue to Arron where he will visit relatives before touring the British Isles. He was uncertain at the time of leaving here whether or not he would tour the continent.

Born in Arron, Mr. Fullerton learned the boat building trade at the Clyde Boat Building Yards. Later he followed the sea with the British Merchant Marine. He came to Brainerd at the age of 28 years and through his energetic work and knowledge of his trade became general car foreman of the Northern Pacific railway company here. He was pensioned a year ago.

Mr. Fullerton is expected to return to Brainerd in the early fall.

A WOMAN FLIES OVER THE ATLANTIC

REPETITION has taken the edge off the trans-Atlantic flight; and the successful conclusion of the Amelia Earhart-Stultz-Gordon adventure, while certain to provoke a few ripples of interest, is not likely to set the world by its ears, says the Minneapolis Tribune editorially. The Atlantic has now been negotiated successfully by air for the fifth time. Brown and Alcock have turned the trick, and Lindbergh and Chamberlin, and Byrd, and the German-Irish trio, and the Earhart trio. The present flight is a companion-piece to the old Brown and Alcock flight. In distance traversed it is not to be compared with either the Lindbergh or the Chamberlin flight, for the point of take-off was Newfoundland. Beside the more ambitious recent flights, the Earhart adventure was a relatively conservative affair.

The chief claim which the present flight has upon the public fancy is that now, and for the first time, a woman has successfully crossed the Atlantic by air. Here again some edge has been taken off the undoubtedly authentic claim by the fact that Ruth Elder came so close to doing the same thing, and on a larger scale. Also the public has grown accustomed to the idea of women making aerial voyages across the ocean. The Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, and Elsie Mackay are feminine names associated, albeit mournfully, with attempted trans-Atlantic crossings.

What does impress one about the list of the various individuals attracted by the hazards of trans-oceanic flying is its high proportion of feminine names. This unquestionably reflects the revolutionized status which woman enjoys in the world today. Since the dawn of civilization man has been the venturesome animal experimenting with the novel and the dangerous. Until recently this was his field alone. The role of woman was that of spectator. Evidently that role had been imposed upon woman by tradition, for once the feminist revolution lifted the ban against feminine participation in masculine pursuits, we find that the number of venturesome women anxious to embark upon hazardous enterprises about equals, or almost equals, the number of venturesome men who "feel the call" to deeds requiring high courage, if not, indeed, foolhardy recklessness (the dividing line being not at all times clear). The extremely venturesome woman, like the extremely venturesome man, is exceptional and a rarity; yet one would assume that the type must occur almost as frequently in the feminine sex as in the masculine. At present we are not far enough away from the feminist revolution, which probably as yet has not even fully run its course, to be able to survey it from the proper perspective; but such evidences we are able to assemble would seem to point to the conclusion that abilities, aptitudes, deficiencies, eccentricities, sensibilities, and insensibilities are disturbed rather equally between the sexes. The nineteenth century philosophy, which held that certain spheres of endeavor were, and of right should be, masculine monopolies, while certain other spheres were, and of right should be, feminine monopolies, evidently was rooted in inherited custom rather than in biological truth. Each year now finds more of these monopolies tossed into the discard. The only monopoly which we now dare dogmatically assert that one of the sexes will be retaining two centuries hence is that of child-bearing. Yet we cannot help suspecting that this biological differential will always keep women some distance short of that ideal of complete parity which the feminists of the equalitarian school so pertinaciously preach.

A REAL BEAST OF BURDEN

A COMPARATIVELY few years ago, before our mechanical giants came into being, it was the custom to call the mule the beast of burden. He was regarded as the extreme of patient, working energy.

Today the real beast of burden is made of steel instead of flesh and bone, motivated by gasoline, instead of blood. It is the crawler-type tractor.

How to solve farm problems is being demonstrated on 3,000 acres of wheat land owned by J. R. Whithycombe, son of a former governor of Oregon. He runs one tractor practically 24 hours daily to pull eight 14-inch plows, plowing to a depth of seven inches. The grade on which the work is being done runs as high as 60 per cent. And for six weeks the tractor has plowed on the average 85 acres of ground daily, without having once cooled off. It is machine methods such as this that are revolutionizing agricultural efficiency.

LAKE REGION CONVENTIONS

LAKE region conventions have a bearing on Brainerd insofar as Brainerd serves as the gateway to the Lake Region and tours assemble here or pass through as did the F. & R. theatre managers and others. Resorts and cottages regard Brainerd as their central supply point.

Roads converge at Brainerd, highways and railways. Some six special trains, conveying the Kappa Kappa Gamma, Delta Delta Delta and Kappa Alpha Theta Greek letter college societies will shortly pass through Brainerd in the order named. Last year Brainerd welcomed the Pi Beta Phi with a band at the depot.

Securing all these conventions has set the month of June in motion and caused tourist traffic to follow the lead of those attending conventions. It has stimulated business and has been of benefit to every one in this great lake country.

RAILROADS MAKE SAFETY RECORD

THE railroads have made consistent progress in safety for employes and passengers. Of the hundreds of millions riding on the railroads in 1927, only ten were killed, a new high record, and 69 less than in 1926. During the last eight years the lines have voluntarily spent $301,306,000 of new capital for safety purposes.

The railroads are bending every effort to reduce accidents at highway grade crossings, and the result of their work is shown by the fact that while the number of automobiles have increased 150 per cent in eight years, fatalities resulting from highway grade crossing accidents have increased but 32.4 per cent during that period.

Absorbing Adventures and Romance of a Country Girl in New York

Chapter I.

ON a bright summer morning, at the wheel of her dilapidated, albeit serviceable, little car sat Miss Alveda Ray—young, pretty, forget-me-not-blue-eyed, and smiling—skimming along the Adirondacks roads with a celerity that was both risky and invigorating.

It was a heavenly morning, surely fashioned for romance and youth and happiness!

And Alveda was quite young—not yet three and twenty.

Romantic? Certainly! Though up here in the mountains no one had touched that unawakened heart.

And happy? Ah! of course, in a queer, excited manner, for—like Alexander launching forth on new worlds to conquer—wasn't she setting out on the morrow to the "Big City" on her first job?

"Oh! Gorgeous!" She had rounded a corner, and far below her in a pine-fringed hollow, gleaming like a bright blue jewel, lay the shimmering loveliness of Indian Lake. Between her and the water butters started the meadows with a blaze of gold. After the night's rain the sun was drawing forth a heavenly odor from the balsam, and the pine, the hemlock, and the cedar, and Alveda—pulling up the car—drank in long breaths of perfume that were exquisite.

"A morning for romance! One ought to meet one's lover!" Up here in the mountains she had got into the habit of thinking out aloud. She descended from the rickety contraption, exhibiting—had anybody been there to see it?—two remarkably pretty nether limbs (sans stockings!) that could have held their own with any stage beauty, and waded into the lush green meadows on a four-leaf-clover quest.

For quaint superstition—let us confess it at the outset—had allured Alveda here.

She wanted Luck. Some token of justification for the Great Step on the morrow.

And today, here in this magic beauty spot, she felt that Luck must certainly mean Love!

Didn't the soft airs blowing over Indian Lake, and lifting the curly tresses of her unbobbed hair, caress her? And the perfume of the clover and the heady odor of green, spicy things remind her of a great love epic in the Bible—wasn't it the Song of Solomon?

Love! Matrimony! Ecstasy! The whole secret of Life!

And over her head on a hemlock bough a bluejay, perching arrogantly, shook an azure wing at her, as though to say:

"Wake up! Don't be a fool, you silly little human!"

"I'll show you!" said Alveda jauntily, and searched amid the clover that, with the "paint-brush" flowers and buttercups, studded the green grass. Then, with a long breath: "Crimineee! I've got it!"

rose to her feet, triumphantly holding aloft the tiny, sprayed four-leaf.

And at that moment came the loud honk of an approaching car.

"Good heavens! My car! Almost blocking the corner!" Alveda came to earth, ran hastily back into the road.

It had rained the previous night, and just at this very point, where maple, spruce and poplar fringed the highway, it was black and slippery. Before Alveda could jump into her machine and steer it further to the side, calamity occurred—almost before she'd time to realize what had happened—in the shape of a big car driven at reckless speed around the bend . . . a sudden grinding of the brakes to dodge her little car . . . a fearful skid . . . the front off-wheel catching in the ditch . . . the car turning turtle, and with a sickening thud hurling the solitary passenger thirty feet along the road!

Alveda screamed, turned sick and dizzy. There at her feet, like a deflated giant, groaning, lay the machine upon its side. Its driver, shaken but apparently unhurt, had scrambled out and was dazedly limping towards the unconscious passenger.

With a mighty effort Alveda pulled herself together, switched off the engine of the car and ran to the prostrate figure lying in the road.

White to the lips and trembling

at the knees, she gasped: "Oh, is he—dead?"

"Mebbe, Dunno. He's—bleeding." The driver—Alveda recognized him as the chauffeur from the local inn—was shaking like an aspen leaf as he knelt beside the injured man.

"That goldarned car of yours—" "I know, I'm sorry. Here—help me pull him to the side—here on the ferns." A strength had come to her. She put her two hands underneath his shoulders, and, assisted by the driver, gently dragged him to the grass.

There was a gash upon his forehead—a spatter of blood trickling down.

"I'll run and get some water. Give me your hat—it'll do." She rushed to a little tinkling stream close by, filled the queer receptacle, and hurried back. Then, to the driver: "I haven't a handkerchief."

"Nor I, miss."

She stooped down and ripped off the deep hem of her white linen dress—then tore the hem in two pieces—one half as a bandage, the other as a towel to bathe that injured head. She knelt on the grass, dipped the linen in the water and commenced "first aid."

"You take my car and go for help. I'll see to him," she said.

The driver disappeared. Alveda, left alone, bent over the pale, calm face.

He was quite young—not more than twenty-five, she thought—and handsome—yes! A little trickle of blood, escaping from the wet bandage, had gone into his thick, dark hair. She wiped it off. She suddenly felt extraordinarily protective—just as though she were his mother—he a little boy—her boy!

He should not die. She would not let him die. That sensitive mouth—the finely cut and mobile features—they must sparkle with the light of life again—be young and gay and vital—smile at her—

The hot tears welled beneath her lids—as impulsively and yearningly she stooped and kissed the dark hair up above the bandages, as though from her own young lips she would transmit warm life to him.

"Look at me! Speak!" she whispered.

The dark lashes fluttered, lifted, and: "Hallo!" said a shaky voice as forget-me-not blue eyes gazed into grey. Blue eyes—"Just like a little bit of heaven!" as he afterwards phrased it—were fixed on grey eyes—just as though those orbs had hypnotized her—or was it a bolt that passed between them from the quiver of the little blind god?

A WOMAN FLIES OVER THE ATLANTIC

REPETITION has taken the edge off the trans-Atlantic flight; and the successful conclusion of the Amelia Earhart-Stultz-Gordon adventure, while certain to provoke a few ripples of interest, is not likely to set the world by its ears, says the Minneapolis Tribune editorially. The Atlantic has now been negotiated successfully by air for the fifth time. Brown and Alcock have turned the trick, and Lindbergh and Chamberlin, and Byrd, and the German-Irish trio, and the Earhart trio. The present flight is a companion-piece to the old Brown and Alcock flight. In distance traversed it is not to be compared with either the Lindbergh or the Chamberlin flight, for the point of take-off was Newfoundland. Beside the more ambitious recent flights, the Earhart adventure was a relatively conservative affair.

The chief claim which the present flight has upon the public fancy is that now, and for the first time, a woman has successfully crossed the Atlantic by air. Here again some edge has been taken off the undoubtedly authentic claim by the fact that Ruth Elder came so close to doing the same thing, and on a larger scale. Also the public has grown accustomed to the idea of women making aerial voyages across the ocean. The Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, and Elsie Mackay are feminine names associated, albeit mournfully, with attempted trans-Atlantic crossings.

What does impress one about the list of the various individuals attracted by the hazards of trans-oceanic flying is its high proportion of feminine names. This unquestionably reflects the revolutionized status which woman enjoys in the world today. Since the dawn of civilization man has been the venturesome animal experimenting with the novel and the dangerous. Until recently this was his field alone. The role of woman was that of spectator. Evidently that role had been imposed upon woman by tradition, for once the feminist revolution lifted the ban against feminine participation in masculine pursuits, we find that the number of venturesome women anxious to embark upon hazardous enterprises about equals, or almost equals, the number of venturesome men who "feel the call" to deeds requiring high courage, if not, indeed, foolhardy recklessness (the dividing line being not at all times clear). The extremely venturesome woman, like the extremely venturesome man, is exceptional and a rarity; yet one would assume that the type must occur almost as frequently in the feminine sex as in the masculine. At present we are not far enough away from the feminist revolution, which probably as yet has not even fully run its course, to be able to survey it from the proper perspective; but such evidences we are able to assemble would seem to point to the conclusion that abilities, aptitudes, deficiencies, eccentricities, sensibilities, and insensibilities are disturbed rather equally between the sexes. The nineteenth century philosophy, which held that certain spheres of endeavor were, and of right should be, masculine monopolies, while certain other spheres were, and of right should be, feminine monopolies, evidently was rooted in inherited custom rather than in biological truth. Each year now finds more of these monopolies tossed into the discard. The only monopoly which we now dare dogmatically assert that one of the sexes will be retaining two centuries hence is that of child-bearing. Yet we cannot help suspecting that this biological differential will always keep women some distance short of that ideal of complete parity which the feminists of the equalitarian school so pertinaciously preach.

A REAL BEAST OF BURDEN

A COMPARATIVELY few years ago, before our mechanical giants came into being, it was the custom to call the mule the beast of burden. He was regarded as the extreme of patient, working energy.

Today the real beast of burden is made of steel instead of flesh and bone, motivated by gasoline, instead of blood. It is the crawler-type tractor.

How to solve farm problems is being demonstrated on 3,000 acres of wheat land owned by J. R. Whithycombe, son of a former governor of Oregon. He runs one tractor practically 24 hours daily to pull eight 14-inch plows, plowing to a depth of seven inches. The grade on which the work is being done runs as high as 60 per cent. And for six weeks the tractor has plowed on the average 85 acres of ground daily, without having once cooled off. It is machine methods such as this that are revolutionizing agricultural efficiency.

LAKE REGION CONVENTIONS

LAKE region conventions have a bearing on Brainerd insofar as Brainerd serves as the gateway to the Lake Region and tours assemble here or pass through as did the F. & R. theatre managers and others. Resorts and cottages regard Brainerd as their central supply point.

Roads converge at Brainerd, highways and railways. Some six special trains, conveying the Kappa Kappa Gamma, Delta Delta Delta and Kappa Alpha Theta Greek letter college societies will shortly pass through Brainerd in the order named. Last year Brainerd welcomed the Pi Beta Phi with a band at the depot.

Securing all these conventions has set the month of June in motion and caused tourist traffic to follow the lead of those attending conventions. It has stimulated business and has been of benefit to every one in this great lake country.

RAILROADS MAKE SAFETY RECORD

THE railroads have made consistent progress in safety for employees and passengers. Of the hundreds of millions riding on the railroads in 1927, only ten were killed, a new high record, and 69 less than in 1926. During the last eight years the lines have voluntarily spent $301,306,000 of new capital for safety purposes.

The railroads are bending every effort to reduce accidents at highway grade crossings, and the result of their work is shown by the fact that while the number of automobiles have increased 150 per cent in eight years, fatalities resulting from highway grade crossing accidents have increased but 32.4 per cent during that period.

Absorbing Adventures and Romance of a Country Girl in New York

Chapter I.

ON a bright Summer morning, at the wheel of her dilapidated, albeit serviceable, little car sat Miss Aleda Ray—young, pretty, forget-me-not-blue-eyed, and smiling—skimming along the Adirondacks roads with a celerity that was both risky and invigorating.

It was a heavenly morning, surely fashioned for romance and youth and happiness!

And Aleda was quite young—not yet three and twenty.

Romantic? Certainly! Though up here in the mountains no one had touched that unawakened heart.

And happy? Ah! of course, in a queer, excited manner, for—like Alexander leaping forth on new worlds to conquer—wasn't she setting out on the morrow to the "Big City" on her first job?

"Oh! Gorgeous!" She had rounded a corner, and far below her in a pine-fringed hollow, gleaming like a bright blue jewel, lay the shimmering loveliness of Indian Lake. Between her and the water buttercups starred the meadows with a blaze of gold. After the night's rain the sun was drawing forth a heavenly odor from the balsam, and the pine, the hemlock, and the clover, and Aleda—pulling up the car—drank in long breaths of perfume that were exquisite.

"A morning for romance! One ought to meet one's lover!" Up here in the mountains she had got into the habit of thinking out aloud. She descended from the rickety contraption, exhibiting—had anybody been there to see it?—two remarkably pretty nether limbs (sans stockings!) that could have held their own with any stage beauty, and waded into the lush green meadows on a four-leaf-clover quest.

For quaint superstition—let us confess it at the outset—had allured Aleda here.

She wanted Luck. Some token of justification for the Great Step on the morrow.

And today, here in this magic beauty spot, she felt that Luck must certainly mean Love!

Didn't the soft airs blowing over Indian Lake, and lifting the curly tresses of her unbobbed hair, caress her? And the perfume of the clover and the heady odor of green, spicy things remind her of a great love epic in the Bible—wasn't it the Song of Solomon?

Love! Mating! Ecstasy! The whole secret of Life!

And over her head on a hemlock bough a bluejay, perching arrogantly, shook an azure wing at her, as though to say:

"Wake up! Don't be a fool, you silly little human!"

"I'll show you!" said Aleda jauntily, and searched amid the clover that, with the "paint-brush" flowers and buttercups, studded the green grass. Then, with a long breath: "Criminee! I've got it!" rose to her feet, triumphantly holding aloft the tiny, sprayed four-leaf.

And at that moment came the loud honk of an approaching car. "Good heavens! My car! Almost blocking the corner!" Aleda came to earth, ran hastily back into the road.

It had rained the previous night, and just at this very point, where maple, spruce and poplar fringed the highway, it was black and slippery. Before Aleda could jump into her machine and steer it further to the side, calamity occurred—almost before she'd time to realize what had happened—in the shape of a big car driven at reckless speed around the bend . . . a sudden grinding of the brakes to dodge her little car . . . a fearful skid . . . the front off-wheel catching in the ditch . . . the car turning turtle, and with a sickening thud hurling the solitary passenger thirty feet along the road!

Aleda screamed, turned sick and dizzy. There at her feet, like a defeated giant, groaning, lay the machine upon its side. Its driver, shaken but apparently unhurt, had scrambled out and was dazedly limping towards the unconscious passenger.

With a mighty effort Aleda pulled herself together, switched off the engine of the car and ran to the prostrate figure lying in the road.

"Mebbe, Dunno. He's—bleeding." The driver—Aleda recognized him as the chauffeur from the local inn—was shaking like an aspen leaf as he knelt beside the injured man.

"That goldarned car of yours—" "I know. I'm sorry. Here—help me pull him to the side—here on the ferns." A strength had come to her. She put her two hands underneath his shoulders, and, assisted by the driver, gently dragged him to the grass.

There was a gash upon his forehead—a spatter of blood trickling down.

"I'll run and get some water. Give me your hat—it'll do." She rushed to a little tinkling stream close by, filled the queer receptacle, and hurried back. Then, to the driver: "I haven't a handkerchief."

HOUSTON STAR EXPECTED AT BREEZY POINT TRAPSHOOT

WOODWARD IN RECORD, BROKE 506 STRAIGHT

WALKER-HUDKINS FIGHT AT CHICAGO TOMORROW

CONSIDERED WORLD'S MOST SENSATIONAL MARKSMAN OF YEAR

STATE SHOOT OF 4 DAYS OPENS AT BREEZY POINT ON THURSDAY

Breezy Point, June 20. — The world's most sensational marksman of the year will come to Minnesota this week for the 44th annual state trapshooting tournament at Breezy Point, according to announcement by Captain Billy Fawcett of the Breezy Point Gun Club, sponsors of the 1928 meet.

He is E. F. Woodward of Houston, Texas, who amazed the scatter-gun world last week by knocking off 506 consecutive targets without a skip in a competition at Tecumseh, Ont. Captain Fawcett has invited him to be his guest at Breezy Point and Woodward has promised to come if he can make arrangements.

Great Entry Expected
According to Captain Fawcett the 1928 tournament will attract the most brilliant field of entries ever seen in a Minnesota tourney. Some of the best known gunmen in America have promised to be on hand and elaborate plans are being made for their entertainment.

At the Port Snelling tournament a year ago, all records for attendance and high class shooting were shattered. This year's meet is expected to outdo the 1927 affair in every way. Last year's champions are expected to have a hard fight to retain their laurels owing to the class with which they will have to contend. The 1927 champs were: Dave Fauske, Worthington, singles; Ivan Darr, Litchfield, doubles; Dick Berens, Litchfield, handicap, and Lester Troch, Breckenridge, diamond badge.

Among the famous shots who will attend from nearby states are, from North Dakota, Clint Rand, Jamestown; Clarence Parker, Minot; and Tony Chezik, Portal; from South Dakota, Archie French, Watertown; Fred Sellinger, Huron; Jerry Wilson, Sisseton, and Ed Smith, Aberdeen; from Wisconsin, Dr. E. Cook, Eau Claire, and H. P. Nicklas. Many pros from all over America will be represented.

The tournament of 1928 is attracting national attention owing to the valuable trophies and the $1,200 in added money offered as an inducement to visitors.

Meet Opens Thursday
The clans will gather on the shores of Big Pelican lake Thursday and informal shooting will start at 1 P. M. that day. This day's performance will not be registered and is staged to permit the marksmen to get the feel of the range and unlimber their artillery.

The fur will start to fly Friday at 9 A. M. with 150 registered targets on the menu. The headliner of that day will be the 44th competition for the Minnesota state diamond badge that is held for one year by the winner. This year's entry money will go to Lester Troch of Breckenridge, last year's winner, according to ancient custom.

Saturday sees the battle for the state singles title with 200 birds on the program. The same day, the state association will hold its annual meeting and elect officers for the ensuing year.

Sunday brings the handicap championship and the struggle for the state doubles title. Twenty-five pairs of targets will be tossed out in the doubles event.

Yesterday's Hero—Lerian, Phillies' new catcher, whose triple in the ninth with two men on beat the Brooklyn Robins 11 to 10. The second game of a scheduled double-header was halted by rain in the third inning, Philadelphia leading 4 to 1.

The Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox divided honors in a twin bill. Washington lost the first game 5 to 1, but took the second 16 to 7 by hard hitting.

Jim Bottomley's fifteenth home run of the season aided the St. Louis Cardinals in beating the Cincinnati Reds 9 to 4.

Rain caused postponement of the following games: New York Giants-Boston Braves; Athletics-Yankees; and the White Sox-Cleveland Indians double-header.

The Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns were forced to stop by rain after four innings. Detroit led 3 to 0.

TEN ROUND ENGAGEMENT AT WHITE SOX PARK

TITLE HOLDER IS FAVORITE AT THE ODDS OF 8 TO 5

IDENTITY OF THIRD MAN IN THE RING IS STILL A MYSTERY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

Chicago, June 20.—A two-fisted, bulldog-jawed Jersey man who wears the middleweight crown, and a flaming-haired youth from Nebraska relaxed today from their strenuous training sessions, while Chicago buzzed with fight talk unparalleled since the Dempsey-Tunney battle of 1927.

Both Mickey Walker, the champion, and Ace Hudkins, the ambitious challenger, are fit and ready for tomorrow night's 10-round engagement at the big White Sox ball park. Walker is in particularly, one might almost say unusually, fine shape, whereof the wise money—of which Chicago has plenty—makes the title holder favorite at odds of 8 to 5. Hudkins' backers were beginning today to suggest that 2 to 1 would be more appropriate odds, although there are many who bank on the challenger's youth, fire and aggressiveness.

The identity of the third man in the ring tomorrow night remains a mystery, but it is safe to predict that the Nebraska Wildcat must spread Mickey on the canvas and tack him down if the title is to change hands.

At that, there is a fair chance of Hudkins doing so, for the pace is bound to be furious from the first gong. That Ace will force the fighting at the start seems reasonably certain. Some believe he can tire Walker out, and win going away in the last five rounds.

The more reasonable assumption, however, is that Walker will catch Hudkins just as Sammy Baker did, but with punches carrying about 20 pounds more weight behind them.

Tearing in wide open, as Ace does, is likely to prove fatal to fistie aspirations when the opponent is as strong and keen a hitter as Mickey Walker.

The champion is below the division weight limit on this, the day of rest. He will enter the ring, weighing between 159 and 160 pounds tomorrow night. Hudkins weighs 154 today, and is not likely to be any heavier when he enters the ring.

By QUIN HALL.

WHEN Melvin Ott walked into the Polo Grounds three years ago and handed Manager McGraw, of the Giants, a note from Bob Williams, a friend of Mac's and a millionaire lumberman from Louisiana, Ott was a shy kid of sixteen.

Now Ott, at nineteen, is occupying a regular berth with the New York ball club and is one of the big sensations under the flaring canopy of the national pastime.

Ott's meteoric rise to fame reads like a romance out of a book. After graduating from the Gretna, La., High School, Mel, who had been acting as shock absorber behind the plate on his school nine, journeyed to New Orleans with his battery mate to talk his way into a tryout with the Southern League team. Bill Heinemann looked the kid over for a few days and told him that he was too young.

Ott, however, wasn't going back to Gretna with nothing to show for his efforts, and got permission to practice during the mornings with the Pelicans.

A few days later Williams, who was running a private team at his lumber camp, drifted into the grounds looking for a couple of young prospects. Mel saw an opportunity to play ball and leaped at the chance. He made good at the camp and within a month a scout for the New Orleans team was looking him over and trying to get him to sign a Pelican contract.

Williams stepped in with the statement that Ott was too good for New Orleans and that the kid was going to the New York Giants.

Shortly thereafter, Mel showed up at the Polo Grounds with a note for McGraw. The note said something about the fact that some day the bearer of the note would be as great a ball player as Roger Bresnahan. After looking at the youngster Mac decided that possibly Williams was suffering from swamp fever but he talked with Ott and finally gave instructions that the lad be given a uniform.

That's the way Melvin came to the big leagues—a gift to the Giants.

McGraw converted Mel from a catcher into an outfielder and the youngster lost no time in showing the boss that he could make good. He edged his way into a few box scores during the regular season as a utility outfielder and a pinch hitter but the Giants had some fast outfielders with experience and after all, Mel was only a kid. McGraw liked Ott's stance at the platter and the manner in which he was willing to take advice and try to improve his game.

This year during the training grind Mac tried him at second and he again showed exceptional ability. One day, with Lindstrom and Reese both out of the line-up, the kid was sent to third and he played the hot corner like a veteran. Then Ott went back to the keystone bag to fill in for Andy Cohen, who was on the sick list. He continued to star.

Youth, under such circumstances, cannot be denied so McGraw issued a statement that no matter what else happened Ott would be used regularly.

During the early laps of this season's gallop Ott has been hitting up with the leaders in the National League. He hits all kinds of pitching and isn't scared by the reputations of some of the league's most famous twirlers. They're all alike to Ott and he's likely to finish well up in the hit column at the close of the year with plenty of circuit drives to his credit.

He's a "natural"—a born ball player and a proof that there is still romance under the big top.

HOUSTON STAR EXPECTED AT BREEZY POINT TRAPSHOOT

WOODWARD IN RECORD, BROKE 506 STRAIGHT

CONSIDERED WORLD'S MOST SENSATIONAL MARKSMAN OF YEAR

STATE SHOOT OF 4 DAYS OPENS AT BREEZY POINT ON THURSDAY

Breezy Point, June 20. — The world's most sensational marksman of the year will come to Minnesota this week for the 44th annual state trapshooting tournament at Breezy Point, according to announcement by Captain Billy Fawcett of the Breezy Point Gun Club, sponsors of the 1928 meet.

He is E. F. Woodward of Houston, Texas, who amazed the scatter-gun world last week by knocking off 506 consecutive targets without a skip in a competition at Tecumseh, Ont. Captain Fawcett has invited him to be his guest at Breezy Point and Woodward has promised to come if he can make arrangements.

Great Entry Expected
According to Captain Fawcett the 1928 tournament will attract the most brilliant field of entries ever seen in a Minnesota tourney. Some of the best known gunmen in America have promised to be on hand and elaborate plans are being made for their entertainment.

At the Fort Snelling tournament a year ago, all records for attendance and high class shooting were shattered. This year's meet is expected to outdo the 1927 affair in every way. Last year's champions are expected to have a hard fight to retain their laurels owing to the class with which they will have to contend. The 1927 champs were: Dave Fauske, Worthington, singles; Ivan Darrt, Litchfield, doubles; Dick Berens, Litchfield, handicap, and Lester Troch, Breckenridge, diamond badge.

Among the famous shots who will attend from nearby states are, from North Dakota, Clint Rand, Jamestown; Clarence Parker, Minot, and Tony Chezik, Portal; from South Dakota, Archie French, Watertown; Fred Sellinger, Huron; Jerry Wilson, Sisseton, and Ed Smith, Aberdeen; from Wisconsin, Dr. E. Cook, Eau Claire, and H. P. Nicklas. Many pros from all over America will be represented.

The tournament of 1928 is attracting national attention owing to the valuable trophies and the $1,200 in added money offered as an inducement to visitors.

Meet Opens Thursday
The clans will gather on the shores of Big Pelican lake Thursday and informal shooting will start at 1 P. M. that day. This day's performance will not be registered and is staged to permit the marksmen to get the feel of the range and unlimber their artillery.

The fur will start to fly Friday at 9 A. M. with 150 registered targets on the menu. The headliner of that day will be the 44th competition for the Minnesota state diamond badge that is held for one year by the winner. This year's entry money will go to Lester Troch of Breckenridge, last year's winner, according to ancient custom.

Saturday sees the battle for the state singles title with 200 birds on the program. The same day, the state association will hold its annual meeting and elect officers for the ensuing year.

Sunday brings the handicap championship and the struggle for the state doubles title. Twenty-five pairs of targets will be tossed out in the doubles event.

Yesterday's Hero—Lerian, Phillies' new catcher, whose triple in the ninth with two men on, beat the Brooklyn Robins 11 to 10. The second game of a scheduled double-header was halted by rain in the third inning, Philadelphia leading 4 to 1.

The Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox divided honors in a twin bill. Washington lost the first game 5 to 1, but took the second 16 to 7 by hard hitting.

Jim Bottomley's fifteenth home run of the season aided the St. Louis Cardinals in beating the Cincinnati Reds 9 to 4.

Rain caused postponement of the following games: New York Giants-Boston Braves; Athletics-Yankees, and the White Sox-Cleveland Indians double-header.

The Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Browns were forced to stop by rain after four innings. Detroit led 3 to 0.

SYREEN WINS OVER MAREA BY 9 VOTES

A. M. Opsahl, Brainerd, Leads All Candidates for Representative

BOARD CHECKS VOTE

Dewing, Anderson, and Burns, Lead in Commissioners Race

Checkup of votes in Monday's primaries made today by the canvassing board composed by W. A. M. Johnstone, Brainerd, G. W. Slocum, Pequot and R. J. Clemens, Ironton, and final checkup of the county auditor's department reveals a close race between William A. Syreen and Michael Marea for second place in the contest for representative in the state legislature from Crow Wing county. A. M. Opsahl proved the popular choice as representative with 1223 votes. Syreen followed with 719 votes and Marea was a close third with 710 votes.

As throughout the entire state Arthur E. Nelson gained a majority in Crow Wing county over his closest rival J. A. A. Burnquist for the republican senator seat in the general election. Nelson polled 1120 votes against Burnquist's 1063 and A. J. Rockne's 769.

Theodore Christianson continues to retain his popularity in Crow Wing county, the vote for the republican governor being 2270. George T. Simpson gathered 831.

G. A. Youngquist with 1827 votes in Crow Wing county for republican attorney general continues to gain the lead throughout the state as incomplete returns show. John C. Larson failed to give him any concern in this county. Larson's vote being 885.

Knute Knutson lead the field for railroad and warehouse commissioner in the county, his 654 votes being 109 votes over Magnusson.

Henrik Shipstead found little opposition in William Watkins for the candidacy of farmer-labor senator. Shipstead polled 1,255 votes to his opponents' 110. Ernest Lundeen was the choice of the farmer-labor party in Crow Wing county for governor. He received 673 votes to L. A. Fritzsche's 481.

John Knutsen for congressman, farmer-labor ticket, led over Carl E. Taylor by 735 to 438.

For associate justice of the supreme court, Clifford L. Hilton polled the high vote of 2,701 against Edward J. Lee's 770 and William H. Vanderburgh's 484.

John Dewing was easily the people's choice for county commissioner of the first district. The incumbent drew 510 votes. His nearest rival was Albert T. Nelson who recorded 269 votes. A. G. Anderson and John Holvick will oppose each other at the general election for county commissioner from the third district. The vote showed Anderson 346, Holvick 295. Ed. R. Burns took the lead in the race for county commissioner in the fifth district. His vote was 468. Archie B. Johnstone will oppose him. He secured 211 votes.

Business Session Tuesday

At the opening business session of the State Bankers Association yesterday, held in Edgewater convention hall and attended by 500 delegates, President A. G. Wedge of Park Rapids gave his annual address, a resume of activities of the different state association committees reporting progress made, and touched on improving conditions in banking and all other business.

He named the resolutions committee, C. B. Mills, chairman, Minneapolis; J. D. Mahoney, Duluth; L. H. Ickler, St. Paul; T. A. Perkins, Windom; and Elmer E. Adams, Fergus Falls.

Officers gave their reports. C. D. Brown, manager, of protective department reported on two bank robberies and apprehension of criminals.

Section 5219 was debated. Attorney General G. A. Youngquist took the side of the state and T. D. O'Brien appeared for the member banks. This section in national law covers bank taxation, that state banks shall not be taxed at a higher rate than other money employed in competition with the bank. Those seeking to amend wish to put banks in a class by themselves, and taxed higher than individuals engaged in same money loaning. The committee on revision of tax laws reported against any amendment.

A. J. Veigel, state commissioner of banks, said he had ordered all state banks to reduce interest charges on savings and time deposits to at least 4 per cent, effective July 1.

Rev. Phillips E. Osgood, St. Mark's church, Minneapolis, gave an inspirational address, "The Standard of Civilization's Best Values".

Proposed resolutions commend officers and committees, thank Brainerd and Pequot bankers committees and others and Breezy Point Lodge for hospitality.

For the past eight years Wally Erickson's orchestra has been the exclusive music at the Coliseum ballroom in St. Paul and the same personnel has been kept for the past five years. The personnel of the orchestra are: Frank Cloutier, piano, manager and composer; Steve Huppert, clarinet and saxophones; Bob Roberts, trumpet and composer; Frank Bily, trombone; Ben Stang, sousaphone and bass; Joe Hunn, saxophones, clarinet and composer; Helon Harmon, trumpet; Sandy Sundberg, percussion; Jack Bartos, piano, cello; Art Tetzner, violin, saxophones and clarinet; Doc Moore, banjo and composer; Wally Erickson, violin and director.

RABIES OUTBREAK CAUSES SOME ALARM

Taylor Falls and Lindstrom Affected, State Livestock Sanitary Board Advises

NONE REPORTED HERE

However County Farm Bureau Organizations are Warned to Maintain Close Lookout

An outbreak of rabies in the vicinity of Taylor Falls and Lindstrom in Chicago county has been reported to Executive Secretary, J. S. Jones of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, at St. Paul, by Dr. Charles E. Cotton, secretary of the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Cows bitten by dogs in this territory have shown positive findings of rabies on laboratory test, Dr. Cotton stated in a report to Mr. Jones.

As a result, all county Farm Bureau organizations are being warned by Mr. Jones regarding this outbreak of rabies within the state.

Dr. Cotton has held conferences with health officers in Taylor Falls, Lindstrom, Center City, Chicago City, and other points in Chicago county and quarantine regulations have been placed in effect on the Charles Friedlund, Swen Erickson and Peter Larson farms, where cattle, dogs and cats have been exposed to an attack by a rabid dog. Charles Friedlund and his sister, who were exposed directly to the mad dog, are taking the Pasteur treatment.

All possible precautions are being taken to prevent spread of rabies to adjoining counties.

Dr. C. A. Nelson, veterinarian, reported that to his knowledge, Crow Wing county was free of rabies.

OPEN CAMPAIGN ON OBNOXIOUS WEEDS

State and Federal Department Men Give Suggestions to Weed Inspectors

TOWNSHIP CHAIRMEN ATTEND

Ox-eyed Daisy Threatens County Farms; Eradication of Barberry Also Urged

Township chairmen of Crow Wing county held a conference Tuesday at the court house for the purpose of discussing the local weed situation. T. C. Heneghan, of the state department of agriculture acted as chairman and spoke on the various phases of weed control and the enforcement of the state noxious and pure seed laws.

"These laws are very important measures and should be given the fullest support by everyone," said Mr. Heneghan, "according to the pure seed law, all agricultural seeds sold for seeding purposes or held for sale must be analyzed and properly labeled giving the variety, place grown, percentage of germination and purity. This is a preventative measure with objects to stop the spreading of noxious weeds through seed."

In the eradication of weeds he gave as a general rule to follow the cutting of all weeds when in full bloom or at the time when the roots are the weakest. Cultivation was given as the best means to kill the ox-eyed daisy, one of the most destructive weeds in existence.

H. G. Ukkelberg, agent of the United States Department of Agriculture was also present and spoke on the Barberry Eradication Campaign, being carried on by the department with the assistance of state and private agencies. He stated that the common barberry was being eradicated in an attempt to eliminate or reduce the heavy losses sustained by farmers from black stem rust in grains and grasses.

The black stem rust is a plant disease, he explained, that lives on two hosts, the common barberry in the spring and the grains and grasses in the summer and fall.

The elimination of the barberry will therefore, he stated, do away with the local source of rust and thereby stop or delay its spread. The common barberry spreads quite rapidly if allowed to grow and he urged the local weed inspectors and farmers in general to be on the lookout for this pest.

Business Session Tuesday

At the opening business session of the State Bankers Association yesterday, held in Edgewater convention hall and attended by 500 delegates, President A. G. Wedge of Park Rapids gave his annual address, a resume of activities of the different state association committees reporting progress made, and touched on improving conditions in banking and all other business.

He named the resolutions committee, C. B. Mills, chairman, Minneapolis; J. D. Mahoney, Duluth; L. H. Ickler, St. Paul; T. A. Perkins, Windom; and Elmer E. Adams, Fergus Falls.

Officers gave their reports. C. D. Brown, manager of protective department reported on two bank robberies and apprehension of criminals.

Section 5219 was debated. Attorney General G. A. Youngquist took the side of the state and T. D. O'Brien appeared for the member banks. This section in national law covers bank taxation, that state banks shall not be taxed at a higher rate than other money employed in competition with the bank. Those seeking to amend wish to put banks in a class by themselves, and taxed higher than individuals engaged in same money loaning. The committee on revision of tax laws reported against any amendment.

A. J. Veigel, state commissioner of banks, said he had ordered all state banks to reduce interest charges on savings and time deposits to at least 4 per cent, effective July 1.

Rev. Phillips E. Osgood, St. Mark's church, Minneapolis, gave an inspirational address, "The Standard of Civilization's Best Values".

Proposed resolutions commend officers and committees, thank Brainerd and Pequot bankers committees and others and Breezy Point Lodge for hospitality.

When Wally Erickson and his original Coliseum orchestra play for the U. C. T. dance at Lum Park on Friday, those attending will be treated to the finest dance music that has ever been brought to Brainerd.

For the past eight years Wally Erickson's orchestra has been the exclusive music at the Coliseum ballroom in St. Paul and the same personnel has been kept for the past five years. The personnel of the orchestra are: Frank Cloutier, piano, manager and composer; Steve Huppert, clarinet and saxophones; Bob Roberts, trumpet and composer; Frank Bily, trombone; Ben Stang, sousaphone and bass; Joe Hunn, saxophones, clarinet and composer; Helon Harmon, trumpet; Sandy Sundberg, percussion; Jack Bartos, piano, cello; Art Tetzner, violin, saxophones and clarinet; Doc Moore, banjo and composer; Wally Erickson, violin and director.

This orchestra is also the feature orchestra broadcasting from WCCO and KSTP and also record exclusively for Gennet records. They also won the northwest championship in 1927.

This is the only appearance of this orchestra in this section of Minnesota and the U. C. T. hope that the public will patronize their offering as there is a considerable expense involved in bringing this organization to Brainerd.

RABIES OUTBREAK CAUSES SOME ALARM

Taylor Falls and Lindstrom Affected, State Livestock Sanitary Board Advises

NONE REPORTED HERE

However County Farm Bureau Organizations are Warned to Maintain Close Lookout

An outbreak of rabies in the vicinity of Taylor Falls and Lindstrom in Chicago county has been reported to Executive Secretary J. S. Jones of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation, at St. Paul, by Dr. Charles E. Cotton, secretary of the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Cows bitten by dogs in this territory have shown positive findings of rabies on laboratory test, Dr. Cotton stated in a report to Mr. Jones.

As a result, all county Farm Bureau organizations are being warned by Mr. Jones regarding this outbreak of rabies within the state.

Dr. Cotton has held conferences with health officers in Taylor Falls, Lindstrom, Center City, Chicago City, and other points in Chicago county and quarantine regulations have been placed in effect on the Charles Friedlund, Swen Erickson and Peter Larson farms, where cattle, dogs and cats have been exposed to an attack by a rabid dog. Charles Friedlund and his sister, who were exposed directly to the mad dog, are taking the Pasteur treatment.

All possible precautions are being taken to prevent spread of rabies to adjoining counties.

Dr. C. A. Nelson, veterinarian, reported that to his knowledge, Crow Wing county was free of rabies.

OPEN CAMPAIGN ON OBNOXIOUS WEEDS

State and Federal Department Men Give Suggestions to Weed Inspectors

TOWNSHIP CHAIRMEN ATTEND

Ox-eyed Daisy Threatens County Farms; Eradication of Barberry Also Urged

Township chairmen of Crow Wing county held a conference Tuesday at the court house for the purpose of discussing the local weed situation. T. C. Heneghan, of the state department of agriculture acted as chairman and spoke on the various phases of weed control and the enforcement of the state noxious and pure seed laws.

"These laws are very important measures and should be given the fullest support by everyone," said Mr. Heneghan, "according to the pure seed law, all agricultural seeds sold for seeding purposes or held for sale must be analyzed and properly labeled giving the variety, place grown, percentage of germination and purity. This is a preventative measure with objects to stop the spreading of noxious weeds through seed."

In the eradication of weeds he gave as a general rule to follow the cutting of all weeds when in full bloom or at the time when the roots are the weakest. Cultivation was given as the best means to kill the ox-eyed daisy, one of the most destructive weeds in existence.

H. G. Ukkelberg, agent of the United States Department of Agriculture was also present and spoke on the Barberry Eradication Campaign, being carried on by the department with the assistance of state and private agencies. He stated that the common barberry was being eradicated in an attempt to eliminate or reduce the heavy losses sustained by farmers from black stem rust in grains and grasses.

The black stem rust is a plant disease, he explained, that lives on two hosts, the common barberry in the spring and the grains and grasses in the summer and fall.

The elimination of the barberry will therefore, he stated, do away with the local source of rust and thereby stop or delay its spread. The common barberry spreads quite rapidly if allowed to grow and he urged the local weed inspectors and farmers in general to be on the lookout for this pest.

POULTRY

ALL-MASH RATION GIVEN APPROVAL

All-mash poultry rations, for both growing chicks and laying hens, are suggested in the most recent bulletin on poultry procedure issued by the extension service of the Ohio state university. "The newer idea of poultry feeding favors the feeding of all the ingredients ground, mixed, and fed as a mash," says Prof. A. R. Winter, of the poultry husbandry department of the university, author of the bulletin.

"The method is simpler, more sanitary, and more economical in the use of the feed than where the ration is fed partly as scratch grain and partly as mash. Since birds prefer a granular mash to one finely ground, it is advisable not to grind the ingredients any finer than is necessary to prevent the chickens from picking over the material and taking out what they like best."

Two "starting and growing" rations, both of them all-mash, are listed in the bulletin. Three all-mash rations and one scratch grain and mash ration are suggested for laying hens.

The first starting and growing ration, a mash, consists of:

Ground yellow corn ..... 72 pounds
Wheat middlings ..... 20 pounds
Meat scraps (50% protein) .. 5 pounds
Poultry bone meal ..... 2 pounds
Salt ..... 1 pound

Skim milk instead of water is given to drink during the first eight or ten weeks. Other forms of milk may be substituted.

The first ration suggested for laying hens is:

Ground yellow corn ..... 65 pounds
Middlings or ground wheat .. 20 pounds
Meat scraps ..... 10 pounds
Bone meal ..... 4 pounds
Salt ..... 1 pound

Water is given to drink. If milk is available, the meat scraps in the ration may be reduced to five pounds.

The bulletin discusses 21 feeding materials for poultry, with reference to their constituents and the particular feeding purpose for which they are available. It is entitled "Poultry Feeding Stuffs and Rations" and may be obtained by writing to the agricultural publications department of the Ohio state university.

Toulouse Best Goose

Breed for Marketing

The best breeds of geese for market are the Toulouse which is sometimes called the Land goose because it does not seem to miss the water; the Embden geese which are white and are profitable market geese, and the African which are nearly the color of the Toulouse and are also fine, large market geese. These are smaller, however, weighing only a little more than one-half of what the others do. Whenever Canadian geese are used to cross with the three or four above mentioned breeds, this cross produces a hybrid goose which is called a mongrel goose on the market. They are considered a great delicacy and bring the highest prices of any poultry per pound. Only a few of them are raised, however, as the demand is limited.

Successful Incubation

Successful and careful incubation, in the case of either duck or chicken eggs, is one of the first and most essential steps towards a strong, healthy flock. Many early chick losses are due to improper incubation and much of the low hatchability of eggs can be traced to poor incubator management. As a consequence, care to details at this time will mean dollars and cents for the poultryman when selling or egg-laying time comes.

Goose Septicemia

There is a disease of geese and goslings known as goose septicemia which causes sudden death. This is a disease undoubtedly due to poison in the feed. No cure is yet known. Sanitary conditions will prevent the disease.

The healthy goslings should be removed to new quarters, a coarse mash should be fed and everything kept as clean as possible. With clean water and a fresh range there should be no trouble to raise them.

Raising Baby Chicks

Raising baby chicks is not such a difficult operation as some would think. Yet a few things are necessary for proper care and raising of chicks. You can raise chicks without much preparation or very much equipment, but your losses will be heavy and your profits will be little if you do not use the proper methods.

You should be prepared to receive the chicks so that when they come you will not have to delay putting them in their future home.

Dirt Floors Poor

Dirt floors are the poorest kind for the poultry house because of the great amount of labor required to keep them clean through each year. Board floors are better than dirt but are hard to clean thoroughly. Concrete floors are the most sanitary and economical. It pays to put in concrete floors in the spring or early summer so they will have time to dry out before the hens are housed for winter. The concrete floor should be 6 or 8 inches above the outside soil.

When an indication of motion is to be found in the writing we find then that the writer is a natural-born traveler. T bars will go on toward the right of the page with considerable pressure. Terminals will flow in the same direction. Writing will also lean toward the direction of travel.

The lower part of the capital I will have a long base resembling a boat, which means that the writer will bring his boat along with him so that he can travel.

I dots flying off to the right or missing entirely and dashes between words both speak of action and movement, a desire to go on.

When letters are well-rounded, you may deduce that they could not have been made in a hurry. This type of writer is content to go easy and not very far. Therefore the opposite to this, a writing that flows on to such a degree that the letters are misshaped, indicates a person who is constantly on the go—at least subconsciously.

Writing made up of letters of various sizes shows nerve energy, and when this is manifest we have the restless writer who is always on the go.

Note—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied. (Copyright.)

POULTRY

ALL-MASH RATION GIVEN APPROVAL

All-mash poultry rations, for both growing chicks and laying hens, are suggested in the most recent bulletin on poultry procedure issued by the extension service of the Ohio state university. "The newer idea of poultry feeding favors the feeding of all the ingredients ground, mixed, and fed as a mash," says Prof. A. R. Winter, of the poultry husbandry department of the university, author of the bulletin.

"The method is simpler, more sanitary, and more economical in the use of the feed than where the ration is fed partly as scratch grain and partly as mash. Since birds prefer a granular mash to one finely ground, it is advisable not to grind the ingredients any finer than is necessary to prevent the chickens from picking over the material and taking out what they like best."

Two "starting and growing" rations, both of them all-mash, are listed in the bulletin. Three all-mash rations and one scratch grain and mash ration are suggested for laying hens.

The first starting and growing ration, a mash, consists of:

Ground yellow corn .....72 pounds
Wheat middlings .....20 pounds
Meat scraps (50% protein) .. 5 pounds
Poultry bone meal ..... 2 pounds
Salt ..... 1 pound

Skim milk instead of water is given to drink during the first eight or ten weeks. Other forms of milk may be substituted.

The first ration suggested for laying hens is:

Ground yellow corn .....65 pounds
Middlings or ground wheat ..20 pounds
Meat scraps .....10 pounds
Bone meal ..... 4 pounds
Salt ..... 1 pound

Water is given to drink. If milk is available, the meat scraps in the ration may be reduced to five pounds.

The bulletin discusses 21 feeding materials for poultry, with reference to their constituents and the particular feeding purpose for which they are available. It is entitled "Poultry Feeding Stuffs and Rations" and may be obtained by writing to the agricultural publications department of the Ohio state university.

Toulouse Best Goose

Breed for Marketing

The best breeds of geese for market are the Toulouse which is sometimes called the Land goose because it does not seem to miss the water; the Embden geese which are white and are profitable market geese, and the African which are nearly the color of the Toulouse and are also fine, large market geese. These are smaller, however, weighing only a little more than one-half of what the others do. Whenever Canadian geese are used to cross with the three or four above mentioned breeds, this cross produces a hybrid goose which is called a mongrel goose on the market. They are considered a great delicacy and bring the highest prices of any poultry per pound. Only a few of them are raised, however, as the demand is limited.

Successful Incubation

Successful and careful incubation, in the case of either duck or chicken eggs, is one of the first and most essential steps towards a strong, healthy flock. Many early chick losses are due to improper incubation and much of the low hatchability of eggs can be traced to poor incubator management. As a consequence, care to details at this time will mean dollars and cents for the poultryman when selling or egg-laying time comes.

Goose Septicemia

There is a disease of geese and goslings known as goose septicemia which causes sudden death. This is a disease undoubtedly due to poison in the feed. No cure is yet known. Sanitary conditions will prevent the disease.

The healthy goslings should be removed to new quarters, a coarse mash should be fed and everything kept as clean as possible. With clean water and a fresh range there should be no trouble to raise them.

Raising Baby Chicks

Raising baby chicks is not such a difficult operation as some would think. Yet a few things are necessary for proper care and raising of chicks. You can raise chicks without much preparation or very much equipment, but your losses will be heavy and your profits will be little if you do not use the proper methods.

You should be prepared to receive the chicks so that when they come you will not have to delay putting them in their future home.

Dirt Floors Poor

Dirt floors are the poorest kind for the poultry house because of the great amount of labor required to keep them clean through each year. Board floors are better than dirt but are hard to clean thoroughly. Concrete floors are the most sanitary and economical. It pays to put in concrete floors in the spring or early summer so they will have time to dry out before the hens are housed for winter. The concrete floor should be 6 or 8 inches above the outside soil.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.
Is He Fond of Travel?

I'm a
I'll go
for you

When an indication of motion is to be found in the writing we find then that the writer is a natural-born traveler. T bars will go on toward the right of the page with considerable pressure. Terminals will flow in the same direction. Writing will also lean toward the direction of travel.

The lower part of the capital I will have a long base resembling a boat, which means that the writer will bring his boat along with him so that he can travel.

I dots flying off to the right or missing entirely and dashes between words both speak of action and movement, a desire to go on.

When letters are well-rounded, you may deduce that they could not have been made in a hurry. This type of writer is content to go easy and not very far. Therefore the opposite to this, a writing that flows on to such a degree that the letters are misshaped, indicates a person who is constantly on the go—at least subconsciously.

Writing made up of letters of various sizes shows nerve energy, and when this is manifest we have the restless writer who is always on the go.
